CLUB CAR AWARDED 'UTV OF THE YEAR'

AUGUSTA, GA (July '08) – Club Car received top honors from ATV/SxS Illustrated this month when editors announced that the XRT1550 IntelliTach would receive the magazine's first ever 'UTV of the Year' award.

Compared to the Cub Cadet Volunteer, the Polaris Ranger, and the John Deere Gator, Editor Bob Davis said, "The XRT1550 can hold its own on tough terrain, but none of the others can hold a candle to its work capabilities..."

This statement comes on the heels of an extensive product review performed by ATV Illustrated's editorial staff. Driving the vehicle through mud bogs, moving dirt and prepping food plots are just a few of the events that staff performed to review the vehicle's workhorse capabilities.

The XRT1550 IntelliTach is a commercial-grade utility vehicle with hosts of industry-exclusives like a 6061 aircraft-quality aluminum frame and built-in IntelliTrak automatic on-demand 4WD system.

Clinching the spot for the award was the impression the built-in IntelliTach system left on the editors. With the use of a joystick- users can easily drop one attachment, pick up another and go. "It's hard to beat those front end hydraulics and attachments," said Davis.

Davis adds the vehicle's comfort and safety features as additional reasons Club Car received the award. "It's got the best legroom, a tilt steering wheel, aluminum frame and comfortable bucket seats with 13-position driver seat settings. In addition, you're surrounded by a four-point certified roll-over protection system (ROPS)."

This is the second year that XRT1550 IntelliTach has received honors from ATV Illustrated, as Club Car received the "Editor's Top Pick" in 2007.

ATV Illustrated posted the article online at: <http://atvillustrated.com/articles/10743> . A full article, along with all editor picks, will be included in the September print issue.
